DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-9 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Double Patenting

2. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-9 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-3 of U.S. Patent No. 7047007. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because, for example, claim 1 of the present application discloses a method for automatically re-establishing a GPRS/EDGE connection between a mobile station and a network following a successfully executed network detach request and comprising in the mobile station, determining if a detach type parameter associated with the network detach request is set to re-attach not required; if the detach type parameter associated with the detach request is set to re-attach not required, and the detach cause parameter associated with the detach request does contain a null value, then monitoring a timeout parameter; and automatically initiating a GPRS/EDGE re-attachment with the network upon expiration of the timeout parameter, while claim 1 of the U.S. Patent No. 7047007 describes a method of automatically re-establishing a GPRS connection between a mobile station and a network in which the network for the mobile station has changed from a first network to a second network following a cell reselection procedure, the method comprising: in the mobile station: receiving a detach request from a first network to terminate a current GPRS connection between the mobile station and the first network; terminating the GPRS connection between the mobile station and the first network pursuant to the received detach request; determining if the detach type parameter associated with the detach request is set to re-attach not required; determining if the detach cause parameter associated with the detach request contains a null value, when the detach type parameter associated with the detach request is set to re-attach not required; determining if either the MCC or MNC of the second network is different from the first network and whether the second network supports GPRS in the present cell, when the detach cause parameter associated with the detach request does contain a null value; and automatically initiating a GPRS attachment with the second network in the present cell, when either the MCC or MNC of the second network is different from the first network and the second network supports GPRS in the present cell.
